DOWN TOWN MEN ARE AGAINST IT

waiian Hotel will be talked over, and something to govern everyone decided on. It is probable from the sentiment expressed today on the part of the largest retail liquor dealers of the city that there will be no reduction of the price. All those who have been seen, express the opinion that a reduction would mean destruction to the trade.

C. J. McCarthy, proprietor of the Criterion, at the corner of Hotel and Bethel streets, one of the finest places in the city, said today to a Bulletin reporter: "I do not want to criticize the attitude taken by any dealer in the city. I only want to put before you the facts as they stand. Candidly, it is my opinion that those saloons which resort to the two-for-a-quarter basis will sooner or later have to go out of business, provided, of course, that the standard of excellence of the liquor dispensed is maintained."

"Now, then, let me give you a little of a few of the differences between this place and San Francisco or any place on the Coast. In the first place, the salary of a bar-keeper up there is $20 a week. We always pay more than that here, and in some cases we pay twice the amount."

"Again, we have to pay $1,000 for a license to do business here, while on the Coast it is a matter of only $100 a year, or just one-tenth of what it costs us."

"I never like to speak of my own private affairs, but in this case I feel that it is justified. My running expenses at this place are $1,200 a month and a place on the Coast equal in proportions to this would cost about $500."

"We have in Honolulu more saloons than the population demands, so that with the limited patronage and increased expenses, it would be impossible for us to do business under the two-for-a-quarter schedule. It is as much as we can do now to pay expenses under the present rate. If the price is reduced some there will be who will have to go to the wall."

"As an illustration I will give the case of one of the saloons in the city. During the past ten months, this place has changed hands four times on account of the inability on the part of the preceding owners to make expenses. Where in the world would that saloon get off if the price of drinks were to be cut in two?"

E. S. Cusack, of the Union, had the following to say: "I intend to keep to the old price. With the present rate of license and the higher prices all around, it is not possible to run a saloon on anything lower than the present rate, provided, of course, it is the intention of the retail places to hand nothing but the best over their bars. The best shall always go over the bar at this place and, therefore, there will be no reduction in the price."

—So far, the Hoffman House, the property of Larry H. Dee, at the corner of Hotel and Nuuanu streets, is the only place outside of the hotel that has come down in the rates. The others are all waiting until the decision is given at the meeting of tomorrow morning. Three attempts were made to find Mr. Dee today but he could not be located and therefore, the reasons for the reduction at his place of business could not be learned.

Do not forget the string quartet concert which is to be given for the benefit of the Kindergarten this evening at 8 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. hall.

who did not sit down at the festive board, being very busily engaged seeing that every guest was having the best time possible. When the toast was proposed, the host and hostess appeared and Mr. Albee responded very gracefully.

Next came a call for Judge De Bolt, who in a few well-chosen words shifted the responsibility to A. G. M. Robertson, who paid a very high tribute both to the ability and dignity which the First Judge of the First Circuit had carried into his office. High Sheriff Brown being called on, proclaimed himself no speaker. Immediately contradicted himself by giving a neat little speech, and then called on F. M. Brooks, who brought smiles to the faces of all by saying he was a sick man, forgetting for the moment that he had been out on the streets attending to business for about three weeks.

The feasting over, the guests lounged about on the lanais, the men smoking the fine Manila cigars which were handed about. The Hawaiian singers redoubled their efforts during the half-hour the people rested.

At the end of that time there was a movement among the guests and an old native singer with his guitar took his place at one end of the small lanai where the head table had stood and started in to chant one of the old hula claps. There was another movement and in a few seconds the leader in Honolulu in the art of the mystic twists and twirls, followed by two other girls, appeared on the scene. They took the places on the large rug that had been prepared for them and soon all the other rooms and parts of the building where the guests had been, were deserted. People simply fell over themselves to see the hula, for the old-time native dance in its original form is something very seldom seen here now.

The dancing continued for an hour or so and then the quietest club started up again. The floors were cleared and the young people paired off for modern dancing. It was midnight before the crowd began to thin out. When Judge De Bolt left, the musicians were instructed to play "Aloha Oe," a very graceful little tribute. High Sheriff Brown was treated in the same way.

Mr. and Mrs. Albee are very evidently not in the habit of doing things by halves. They provided the very best of everything and maintained a personal supervision of every guest present. Among those present besides the names of the guests already given,

PILOT CAMERON

BACK FROM SEA

The big ship Clarence S. Bement arrived in port yesterday soon after noon, after an absence of several days off to leeward. She brought back Pilot Cameron and his crew, all of whom rather enjoyed their outing.

The Fearless went out after the Bement and got her to the fishmarket wharf, experiencing considerable difficulty in handling the big ship in the high wind.

Captain Grant, who has a host of friends ashore, surprised them by his changed appearance. Since his last visit here, he has grown a most luxuriant set of whiskers which give the general gentleman a rather fierce look. The Bement will load sugar for Castle & Cooke and Brewer & Co., for New York.

The Sierra is due here tomorrow from the Colonias.
